INTRODUCTION

Under Oregon law, individuals who are dangerous to themselves, ~~dangerous to or~~ others, or unable to take care of their own basic needs, due to a mental disorder, may be civilly committed to the Oregon Health Authority (OHA) for involuntary detention and treatment. Involuntary detention due to mental illness is “a massive curtailment of liberty.” Humphrey v. Cady, 405 U.S. 504, 509 (1972). The State and Federal Constitutions require that mentally ill persons who are involuntarily detained receive treatment calculated to lead to the end of their involuntary detention. Or. Advocacy Ctr. v. Mink, 322 F.3d 1101, 1121 (9th Cir. 2003). It is not acceptable under the law—let alone basic standards of human dignity and decency—to merely “warehouse” mentally ill individuals away from the community and not provide them appropriate treatment during their involuntary detention. Sharp v. Weston, 233 F.3d 1166, 1172 (9th Cir. 2000) (recognizing that “all too often the promise of treatment has served only to bring an illusion of benevolence to what is essentially a warehousing operation of social misfits”) (quoting U.S. ex rel. Stachulak v. Coughlin, 520 F.2d 931, 936 (7th Cir. 1975)).

~~Civil commitment is OHA is responsible for the care and treatment of civilly committed patients because patients are committed~~ “to the Oregon Health Authority for treatment.” ORS-426.130(1)(a)(C). ~~However, the Oregon Health Authority (OHA) For years, however, OHA has failed to fulfill its responsibilities to this vulnerable population. Rather than ensure and provide timely access to meaningful the appropriate level of treatment, OHA has adopted a practice of abandoning civilly committed patients and leaving them for extended periods of time in acute care community hospitals. These acute care community hospitals are not designed, equipped, staffed, or intended to provide long-term treatment for mental illness. Acute care community hospitals are meant to provide stabilizing treatment to manage the acute symptoms of patients experiencing severe mental health crises—treatment which involves emergency care, highly restrictive settings, and constant monitoring.~~ But~~However,~~ civilly committed patients who have already been stabilized (~~that is, most civilly committed patients~~) do not need that kind of care; instead, they need long term treatment. Long term treatment aims to do more than simply manage the patient's symptoms—it aims to address the patient's mental illness itself with the goal of enabling the patient to recover from their illness and return to the community. Long term treatment requires a calmer, less stressful, less restrictive environment where patients have more independence, peer support, socialization, and opportunities to develop life and health skills. Thus, when OHA leaves civilly committed patients indefinitely in acute care hospitals, they do not meaningfully recover because they are denied access to long term treatment. This failure to provide the appropriate level of treatment violates patients' constitutional rights~~do not need this kind~~type of care and have no medical need to be in such restrictive environments. These pPatients instead need long-term treatment, in less restrictive settings, that acute care community hospitals cannot provide.

OHA's practice also violates the constitutional rights of acute care~~There is no legitimate state interest behind OHA's failure to provide appropriate treatment. OHA is abandoning civilly committed patients in community hospitals not because OHA is looking out for patients' best interests; rather, it is because OHA lacks sufficient facilities to provide the long-term treatment that OHA is charged by law to provide, and OHA deliberately makes a choice not to not devote sufficient funding and resources necessary to providing such treatment. In essence, OHA has outsourced its responsibilities to civilly committed patients to community hospitals so that OHA does not have to devote more funding and resources to such patients.~~

OHA's conduct, policy, and practices harms civilly committed patients. Rather than progress to the next level of treatment, patients remain confined unnecessarily in acute care units where they are denied access to the long-term treatment that justifies their commitment in the first place, and that the treatment they are constitutionally entitled to receive as a condition of taking away their liberty. This practice violates OHA's statutory duties and ignores the fundamental rights of civilly committed Oregonians: access to mental health treatment that gives them “a realistic opportunity to be cured or to improve [the] mental condition” for which they were confined. Ohlinger v. Watson, 652 F.2d 775, 779 (9th Cir. 1980).

OHA’s conduct, policy, and practices also violate the constitutional rights of harms community hospitals by taking hospitals’ property with neither due process of law nor just compensation. ~~Instead of meeting its statutory obligation to provide mental health services and treatment to civilly committed individuals, the state has inappropriately transferred all of its responsibilities to care for those individuals to acute care hospitals. OHA’s failure to make even minimal efforts to locate appropriate long term treatment facilities for civilly committed individuals forces acute care hospitals to shoulder the obligation. Because hospitals cannot~~ Because hospitals cannot, and will not, discharge civilly committed individuals, who desperately need long-term treatment, OHA’s failure to act means that ~~acute care~~ community hospitals must hold some civilly committed individuals for long periods of time. ~~In many cases, acute care hospitals have held civilly committed individuals for weeks, months, or even the patient’s entire 180 day commitment period (and sometimes additional recommitment periods).~~ As a result, ~~acute care~~ community hospitals must dedicate significant resources to patients who have no medical reason to be in emergency or acute care settings. These resources include the efforts of physicians, nurses, other care providers, and hospital staff as well as costs associated with medication, housing patients who should be elsewhere, injuries to hospital staff, and damage to hospital property. OHA does not adequately compensate and reimburse hospitals for expending these resources ~~and fails to assist in the protection of hospital staff and other patients, or hold payers accountable to provide adequate reimbursement.~~

In addition to harming civilly committed individuals and community hospitals Moreover, OHA’s conduct, policy, and actions ~~practices~~ also ~~negatively impact~~ hurts the community. Oregon is in the middle of an unprecedented mental health crisis and community hospitals are desperately needed to treat and stabilize other vulnerable patients experiencing mental health crises, many of whom are also struggling with substance abuse disorder and houselessness in addition to mental illness. Because the beds of ~~acute care~~community hospitals are taken up by civilly committed individuals, who should be transferred to long-term treatment facilities that can provide them with meaningful treatment, ~~other~~ individuals in acute mental health crises are unable to access care at ~~acute care~~community hospitals.

~~Community hospitals bring this lawsuit to hold OHA has been keenly aware of this problem for years but has done nothing to fix it. Instead, OHA has abdicated all responsibility for civilly committed individuals, accountable and done nothing to increase capacity to ensure these individuals~~ civilly committed patients have access to the most appropriate long-term placements.

~~OHA has defended its actions by offering expedited admission to the Oregon State Hospital (OSH) for certain civilly committed individuals. But OSH has limited expedited admission to only those civilly committed patients who are severely violent (which most are not) and gone so far as to require the patient to injure others while in an acute care hospital to even be considered for admission. While care providers are routinely assaulted (be it kicked, punched, shoved, or bitten), rarely is that enough to gain expedited admission to OSH. Even when care providers and others are injured, OHA routinely refuses expedited admission due to the patient not being violent enough. This unlawful practice, which encourages workplace violence, should not be permitted to continue. Acute care hospitals are not set up to handle that level of aggression. Nor is it acceptable, safe, or sustainable to require other patients and care providers to be exposed to a heightened risk of violence in community hospitals, which are supposed to be therapeutic healing environments.~~

~~OHA also points to the fact that a federal court order requires it to accommodate criminal defendants at OSH who are found guilty except for insanity or unable to aid and assist in their own defense. Yet OHA has been under these orders for years, and has done little to build capacity in the community to ensure an adequate supply of secure beds are available for individuals who are civilly committed. To be clear, Plaintiffs strongly support the rights of~~

PARTIES

5. Plaintiffs are four of Oregon's largest not-for-profit corporations licensed to health systems that provide hospital and healthcare services. The throughout the state in accordance with their missions to serve patients and the community. Plaintiffs' community hospitals operated by Plaintiffs all receive patients who are detained or civilly committed pursuant to Oregon law, as alleged below.

6. The community hospitals operated by Plaintiffs are not designed, equipped, staffed, or intended to provide long-term mental health treatment for civilly committed individuals. The Only some of Plaintiffs' hospitals have behavioral health units operated by Plaintiffs. Those units are intended to serve the community as acute care facilities at which patients experiencing acute mental health crises are evaluated, stabilized, and discharged to the next appropriate level of care. By design, the average length of stay for most patients in those units is 14 days or less. However, due to the conduct, policy, and practices and conduct of OHA, civilly committed individuals commonly remain in the behavioral health units of community hospitals for much longer periods of time. These units are highly restrictive, locked environments. Patients are able to can leave the units only for short periods of time, if at all, because of environmental, regulatory, and staffing limitations. This type of confined setting is not designed to provide the appropriate therapeutic setting for long-term treatment. As a result, patients left languishing in these environments by OHA do not receive needed care and, in some cases, decompensate back to unstable conditions. OHA's failure to provide appropriate treatment settings for civilly committed patients, despite its legal responsibility to do so, directly results in unnecessarily long lengths of stay in community hospitals.

7. Plaintiffs also operate emergency departments and medical-surgical units within their community hospitals. As alleged below, patients experiencing mental health crises often are depression, and sometimes violent behaviors that can cause them to be a danger toward themselves and others. In short, these individuals are very ill and with severe mental illness require significant care and treatment.

15. Civil commitment is a drastic measure that the state takes only if no other option for care is available. A judge may commit a person only if a mental illness makes the person a danger to themselves or others or unable to provide for take care of their own basic personal needs like health and safety. The Supreme Court has held that involuntary detention due to mental illness is “a massive curtailment of liberty.” Humphrey, 405 U.S. at 509. Accordingly, due process requires that civilly committed persons receive treatment calculated to lead to the end of their involuntary detention. Id. Failing to provide this type of care to persons who are involuntarily detained—and instead using involuntary commitment to merely “warehouse” mentally ill persons patients away from the community—violates due process, not to mention basic standards of human dignity and decency.

16. To that end, when the state pursues civil commitment, the state must provide mental health treatment that gives civilly committed patients “a realistic opportunity to be cured or to improve [the] mental condition” for which they were confined. Ohlinger v. Watson, 652 F.2d at 775, 779. (9th Cir. 1980). “Adequate and effective treatment is constitutionally required because, absent treatment, [civilly committed persons] could be held indefinitely as a result of their mental illness.” Id. at 778. Thus, civil commitment requires individualized treatment in the least restrictive setting possible with the goal of restoring the person’s liberty, and commitment can last only long enough for the purpose of giving patients treatment that gives them a “realistic opportunity to be cured or to improve” so that they can return to the community and not be recommitted.

To get a “realistic opportunity to be cured or to improve,” a patient typically requires two phases<sup>17.</sup> The first phase of treatment. First, is to stabilize the patient must be stabilized. The goal of stabilization is to manage and alleviate patients’ most acute symptoms so that those symptoms do not inhibit long-term recovery. Stabilizing treatment typically involves medication to manage acute symptoms like, such as psychosis, hallucinations, delusions, and/or aggressive or violent physical behavior. The patient must be monitored so medications can be managed and staff can promptly intervene if patients try to hurt themselves or others needed. Due to these limitations, the patient must be in a highly restrictive setting, and patients often cannot be allowed to move about as they please. Because stabilization is intended to last for only 1-10 days be short-term, this highly restrictive environment is meant to be only temporary and is the role acute care hospitals are intended to play serve in the process continuum of care.

18. After being stabilized, a civil commitment patient typically requires subset of civilly committed patients need long-term treatment. Long-term treatment aims to do does more than simply manage the patient's acute symptoms—it aims to address the patient's mental illness itself with the goal of enabling the patient to recover from their illness and return to the community. Each patient in long term treatment typically has an individualized treatment plan, which helps them recover from their acute mental illness. Long-term treatment involves fewer restrictions and offers more independence so that patients can practice and develop life and health skills for being successful in the community, including the ability to take day passes and overnight visits to facilitate transition back to the community. It involves a more stable peer environment with less patient turnover, more socialization, more group counseling, and more peer support. It involves provides training and education programs for patients to learn how to care for their basic needs, maintain employment, and maintains sustain healthy relationships. It requires provides a calmer, less stressful environment than exists in the emergency department or an acute-care unit of a community hospital, that which reduces the risk of the individual decompensating back into an acute mental health crisis.

19. An emergency or acute care environment setting, where patients are stabilized, is not appropriate for patients who to remain long-term when they need long-term recovery. Acute treatment. Emergency and acute care environments are, by necessity, far more restrictive than long-term treatment environments. Acute Emergency and acute care environments~~s units~~ typically house ~~peer~~ patients in crisis and require more monitoring and staffing than do long-term treatment environments. These features can be counterproductive to patients who have ~~already been~~ stabilized and ~~who~~ are working to recover ~~from their mental illness~~ so that they can regain their freedom and return to the~~is~~ community. A patient in long-term recovery cannot receive the socialization and skill-development opportunities in an emergency or acute care environment; ~~and the.~~ The increased level of restriction is unnecessary for such patients and often can cause decompensation.

20. For these reasons, it is difficult to overstate how crucial it is that a civilly committed patient, once stabilized, be transitioned into an environment conducive to long-term treatment. If a civilly committed patient is not transferred, the patient's liberty is unnecessarily curtailed, the patient does not meaningfully recover, the patient may decompensate, the patient becomes more likely to be re-committed in the near future, and the very purpose of civil commitment is undermined.

B. B.—Oregon law requires OHA to ensure that civilly committed individuals receive appropriate long-term treatment.

21. The state is responsible for the civil commitment process. The state initiates civil commitment proceedings; the state pursues civil commitment from the court; and, if commitment is ordered, patients are committed “to the Oregon Health Authority for treatment.”

ORS_426.130(1)(a)(C)_(emphasis added). As such, it is the responsibility of the state to provide civilly committed individuals with necessary treatment during their commitment in the most appropriate and least restrictive setting possible to fulfill patients' constitutional rights.

22. Where a person has been civilly committed, Oregon law charges OHA with the responsibility for finding an appropriate placement for long-term treatment. Oregon law requires that, “[u]pon receipt of the order of commitment, OHA or its designee shall take the person with

The director of OHA may place the person in a community hospital—however, in doing so, the director of OHA must “consult” with the community hospital’s admitting physician, and both must, together, “determine whether the best interests of a ~~committed~~ person under civil commitment are served by an admission to a community hospital.” OAR 309-033-0270(3)(a).

OAR 309-033-0270(3)(a).

C. C.—OHA has shut the doors of the Oregon State Hospital to civilly committed patients and failed to create is failing to provide appropriate long-term placement options in the community treatment to civilly committed patients who need it during their involuntary commitment.

1.—Oregon’s civil commitment system has broken down as OHA has, for years, ignored its statutory obligations to this most vulnerable population. Rather than increasing capacity and addressing the problems, OHA has completely abdicated its lawful duty to transfer civilly committed patients out of highly restrictive acute care hospitals and into appropriate long-term treatment settings. For most of these individuals, a hospital is the doorway to the civil commitment system. However, many patients experiencing a mental health crisis do not get past that doorway. By law, every patient coming to a hospital emergency department must be given a medical screening examination and provided stabilizing treatment for an emergency medical condition, including a psychiatric crisis. Some are admitted to the hospital for acute stabilization

~~of their symptoms. Once a patient is committed, however, OHA is leaving them stuck in acute care hospitals indefinitely, instead of transferring them to appropriate long term placements. Some civil commitment patients even remain in overly restrictive hospital settings for the entire length of their commitment, which can be 180 days or longer if renewed by the court. Despite the hospitals' best efforts, they cannot provide the long term treatment civilly committed individuals need and are entitled to by law. The acute care community hospitals are not equipped, staffed, or designed to house civilly committed individuals for months at a time, let alone six months or more, when there is an urgent need for those beds by other acute psychiatric patients in the community.~~<sup>4</sup>

~~OHA has neglected its responsibilities to civilly committed patients because it has failed to provide and build out adequate treatment capacity for civilly committed individuals, and because OHA is unlawfully prioritizing care for other populations of mentally ill individuals.~~<sup>24</sup>

Oregon's civil commitment system has broken down as OHA has, for years, ignored its statutory obligations to this most vulnerable population. Despite the state's responsibility to provide civilly committed individuals with constitutionally sufficient treatment, OHA is failing to ensure that appropriate long-term treatment is available to patients who need it.

2. 25. Historically, civilly committed individuals went to the Oregon State Hospital (OSH), the mental health hospital operated and managed by OHA. ORS 179.321(1). OSH is intended to be used by the state "for the care and treatment of persons with mental illness." ORS 426.010. ~~It is the only state hospital in Oregon and is supposed to serve three populations of mentally ill persons: (1) civilly committed individuals, (2) those found guilty except for insanity (GEI) in a criminal case, and (3) aid and~~

<sup>4</sup> ~~Meanwhile, civilly committed patients have no one to advocate on their behalf because Oregon's civil commitment scheme does not provide them with counsel after the point of commitment. While individuals who are detained have a right to counsel during the court process leading up to an order of commitment, that representation ends at the time the order is entered. Having been civilly committed, individuals are no longer represented by counsel to protect their rights. They are lost to the oversight of the courts that have committed them, as is OHA, which disclaims responsibility for their care.~~

~~However, Within OSH are multiple secure long-term residential treatment units which provide the long-term treatment that many civilly committed patients need: fewer restrictions, more independence, a calmer and more stable environment, more stable peer communities, less patient turnover, more socialization and peer support, more group counseling, and more training and education programs for patients to learn to care for their basic needs, maintain employment, and sustain healthy relationships. However, over the years (and as a result of other federal court litigation<sup>16</sup>), OHA has increasingly prioritized the admission of aid-and-assist and guilty except for insanity (GEI) patients at OSH over civil commitment patients. For example, in November of 2018, a 26 bed unit for civil commitment patients at OSH was turned into a unit for aid-and-assist patients. In July of 2019, another 26 bed unit for civil commitment patients was converted to use for aid-and-assist patients. civilly committed patients. In December of 2019, OSH stopped taking civilly committed patients, with very few exceptions, and shifted virtually altogether, shifting admission priorities to focus almost entirely on the aid-and-assist and GEI populations. By May of 2024, there were less than 20 civilly committed patients at OSH out of almost 650 beds.

26. Over this period of admitting steadily fewer civilly committed patients to its state hospital facilities, OHA has done virtually nothing to create additional capacity for civilly committed patients to receive needed treatment in appropriate settings. For instance, OHA has not increased capacity at OSH to continue accommodating civilly committed patients even as it has admitted steadily more patients from the aid-and-assist and GEI populations. Nor has OHA built other secure residential treatment facilities or other long-term treatment options outside of OSH. Despite recognizing that it is a longstanding problem, OHA has failed to step up to fix it.

3. As a result, and as shown below, the admittance rate of civilly committed patients to OSH has plummeted (and the number of civilly committed individuals stuck in acute care hospitals has skyrocketed). Five years ago, about one third of OSH patients, or more than 200, were civilly committed. Between January and March of 2021, 94% of new patients at OSH were aid and assist patients, and in June of 2021, the civil commitment population made up less than 5% of OSH patients. Yet, at the same time, OHA has failed to provide other options for

27. OHA has also failed to ensure that other entities authorized to care for civilly committed patients—like counties, municipalities, and nonprofit organizations—can fill the gap left by the state. OHA has failed to, for instance, provide sufficient funding, grants, or other incentives for other entities to create and run long-term treatment facilities needed by many of the patients who are civilly committed to OHA’s custody but not receiving long-term treatment.<sup>2</sup>

4.—28. Plaintiffs strongly support the rights of aid-and-assist and GEI patients to, who should be removed from jail and ~~to~~ receive meaningful treatment. But OHA is responsible for civilly committed patients, too, and must ~~do this serve aid-and-assist and GEI patients without abandoning civilly committed patients.~~ ByIndeed, Tthe law, prohibits OHA ~~may not prioritize from prioritizing~~ aid-and-assist and GEI patients over civilly committed patients if it means giving civilly committed patients inadequate care. The Ninth Circuit has held that, when it comes to providing constitutionally adequate treatment to involuntarily detained patients, “[l]ack of funds, staff or facilities cannot justify the State’s failure to provide [such persons] with [the] treatment necessary for rehabilitation.” Ohlinger, 652 F.2d at 779. Indeed, OHA’s recent practices have already been adjudged unlawful by this Court. On November 15, 2021, in Bowman v. Matteucci, 3:21-cv-01637, Judge Marco A. Hernández granted injunctive relief to GEI patients who claimed that they were unconstitutionally being denied admission to OSH because OHA was prioritizing the admission of aid-and-assist patients. OHA argued that, due to an injunction regarding admission requirements for aid-and-assist patients in Or. Advoc. Ctr. v. Mink, 322 F.3d 1101, 1121–22 (9th Cir. 2003), OHA had to prioritize aid-and-assist patients over other populations of patients. Judge Hernández expressly rejected the notion that OHA may prioritize the constitutional rights of some patients over others:

<sup>2</sup> For example, in the entire State of Oregon, there are currently only two Class One secure residential treatment facilities. A Class One facility is approved “to be locked to prevent a person from leaving the facility, to use seclusion and restraint, and to involuntarily administer psychiatric medication.” OAR 309-033-0520(23). These are critical resources that some civilly committed individuals may require before they are ready to step down to a lower level of care.

If OSH cannot admit GEI patients while admitting aid-and-assist patients within the court-ordered timeframe, it's because OSH lacks the space and the funding to do so—not because the Mink order compels it to prioritize one group over another. In other words, any prioritization stems from Defendant's failure to provide the funds, staff, and facilities necessary to satisfy the constitutional rights of both groups. When satisfying constitutional guarantees, Defendants cannot rob Peter to pay Paul.

Bowman v. Matteucci, 3:21-cv-01637, 2021 WL 5316440, at *2 (D. Or. Nov. 15, 2021) (emphasis added). Despite this unambiguous ruling, OHA continues to systematically prioritize care for other patients over care for civilly committed patients, ~~once~~ again “robbing Peter to pay Paul.”

D. ~~OHA’s failure to provide appropriate and legally required treatment to civilly committed individuals—and the negative impact on Oregon’s community hospitals—is well known to OHA. A 2017 study for OHA concluded: “Patients at the state hospital for aid and assist take up beds that could be used for civil commitment patients. This results in more civilly committed individuals waiting in acute care for a state hospital bed to open up. This decreases the access to acute care beds, which causes a backup in the ED. Multiple strategies have tried to reverse this trend with only minimal success. OHA is revitalizing planning and actions and will have a strategic action plan in place by February 2017.”<sup>3</sup> But, despite having known of its practices since 2017, OHA has continued to ignore its statutory obligations and has continued effectively outsourced its responsibilities to the civilly committed population to knowingly reduce community hospitals without hospitals’ consent.~~

29. Rather than addressing these problems by increasing long-term placement treatment capacity and options for throughout Oregon, OHA has effectively outsourced its responsibilities to civilly committed patients over that time by leaving patients indefinitely in community hospitals’ emergency rooms, acute behavioral care units, and medical-surgical units.

5. Today, OSH rarely admits civilly committed patients—despite the fact that OSH is not at 100% capacity and has empty beds.<sup>4</sup> This last year, OSH averaged less than 20 civil commitment patients per month, including a grand total of 16 in June of 2022. In the last few years, the only way a handful of civilly committed individuals have gotten into OSH is by qualifying for expedited admission due to being severely violent. To qualify for expedited admission, OHA requires that the person exhibit severe aggression directed towards other persons and/or property in the previous two weeks, and which has (1) resulted in injury to others or property destruction, (2) required frequent or prolonged restraint and/or seclusion, (3) has persisted and remains at ongoing high risk of recurrence despite adequate treatment, and (4) cannot be safely treated on an acute psychiatric unit.<sup>5</sup> In other words, OHA requires the person to be severely violent towards others and/or property and have already injured someone or destroyed property while in the acute care hospital to even be considered for admission to OSH. Even then, individuals who should qualify for expedited admission are routinely denied, and left in acute care hospitals. In effect, OHA has made admission to OSH next to impossible for most civilly committed individuals who are not violent at all, and have done nothing wrong other than to suffer from a mental illness. And OHA has provided essentially no other options where these individuals can receive appropriate long term treatment they are entitled to by law.

6. Meanwhile, ~~not one~~ civilly committed person has been admitted to OSH in the last several years based on the regular admission criteria. While individuals who meet regular admission criteria are routinely placed on the wait list for OSH, they are never admitted. Essentially, it has become a wait list to nowhere.

The closure of OSH's doors to the civilly committed population, without other capacity having been built, means that these individuals are denied access to appropriate 30.

Plaintiffs are Oregon's four largest health systems, each of which operates several community hospitals across Oregon. Each of Plaintiffs' hospitals have emergency departments or emergency rooms where patients experiencing severe crises and psychiatric emergencies may receive emergency psychiatric care. Some (but not all) of Plaintiffs' hospitals have acute behavioral care units, in which patients requiring further acute care after emergency treatment can be treated and monitored overnight or for up to a few couple weeks while they stabilize.

31. Due to the high level of close monitoring and treatment involved in providing acute care for these patients, emergency and acute behavioral care settings are highly restrictive. Other patients occupying the units are generally not stable because they are still in the process of being treated and stabilized. Further, the environments can be stressful, and the rate of patient turnover is high. These environments are not conducive to patients who require the calm, stability, and freedom that exists in long-term treatment environments. There is no realistic way for Plaintiffs to realistically provide long-term treatment in a far less restrictive setting such environments.

32. In comparison to a restrictive acute care unit, OSH and, secure residential treatment facilities are a much more humanesuitable place for an individual to be not only civilly committed individuals who no longer require emergency or acute behavioral care because they offer long-term treatment (which acute care hospitals do not), but also because individuals have much) and allow more freedom and a better quality of lifeindependence for the patient. For example, a patient at on an acute care unit necessarily must live in confined, closed-off, heavily monitored physical spaces:

~~population.<sup>6</sup> Most secure residential treatment facilities are often full and have closed waitlists. Even when facilities are not full, they generally prioritize referrals from OSH, while referrals from acute care hospitals are given less priority. With no options for long term placement, civilly committed individuals remain stuck in acute care hospitals without access to meaningful treatment. It leads to an unconscionable, but all too common situation,<sup>34</sup> Where a patient in the emergency room potentially meets the criteria for civil commitment—that is, they present a danger to themselves or others or are unable to take care of their own basic needs, due to a mental illness—a licensed independent practitioner may initiate civil commitment proceedings.~~

~~When this happens, Plaintiffs must involuntarily detain and hold the patient for several days under a “Notice of Mental Illness,” at least until the state holds a civil commitment hearing and a state court judge issues a commitment order (or until the patient no longer meets detention criteria). Of the patients who are detained, some remain in emergency departments while others may be admitted to the scarce number of inpatient psychiatric beds that exist in Plaintiffs’ hospitals, and still others may be admitted to inpatient medical unit beds. Regardless of where patients are located in Plaintiffs’ hospitals, federal and state laws and regulations and medical ethics prohibit Plaintiffs from discharging these patients while they are psychiatrically unstable, lack a safe discharge plan, and are being detained under Oregon civil commitment law. Plaintiffs also cannot discharge unstable patients in their emergency rooms under EMTALA; if they did, they would be subject to enforcement action which might include loss of Medicare funding. As detailed below, this would be true even if Plaintiffs withdrew their certification for providing short-term acute care services to civilly committed patients—if Plaintiffs did this, there would~~ simply be no beds to send most patients, and patients would remain in the emergency room or in an inpatient unit.

35. Where a patient is ordered committed, Oregon law charges OHA with the responsibility for “tak[ing] the person with mental illness into its custody” and “ensur[ing] the safekeeping and proper care of the person until the person is delivered to an assigned treatment facility.” ORS 426.150(1). OHA must direct the civilly committed person “to the facility best able to treat the person” or ensure that the person is directed to a “suitable” facility.
ORS 426.060(2)(a), (d). Some civilly committed patients can be stabilized within two to three weeks of commitment; for those individuals, remaining in acute care units may be appropriate because those patients may still benefit from emergency psychiatric and acute behavioral care. Other civilly committed patients, however, already have been stabilized as much as is medically possible around the time they are civilly committed (or shortly thereafter) but are in need of long-term, specialized care.

36. Under a functional statewide behavioral healthcare system, OHA is supposed to send the latter subset of civilly committed patients (who are no longer benefiting medically from emergency psychiatric care and acute behavioral care) to a suitable facility that provides long-term care, such as a secure residential treatment facility. But OHA does not differentiate between civilly committed patients who continue to need emergency psychiatric or acute behavioral care and from those patients who do not. Rather than consider the individual needs of the patient and exercise discretion to make affirmative decisions based on the patients’ health about whether such patients should either remain in a community hospital or be transferred to a different facility (and rather than ensuring that an appropriate delegatee make such decision appropriately), OHA fails to make any decision based on the patients’ health, and simply abandons patients in the community hospitals where they already are so that OHA may avoid responsibility for—and the devotion of resources to—such patients. In doing so, OHA does not consult with the treating physicians of those community hospitals to determine the best location for individual patients’ care, as is required by OAR 309-033-0270(3)(a). OHA is willfully doing this despite knowing that, for some individuals, the patient can no longer receive any medical benefit from the emergency psychiatric care and acute behavioral care that Plaintiffs provide and cannot receive the long-term treatment the patient needs, despite Plaintiffs' best efforts to provide good medical care to patients. Community hospitals are simply not equipped, staffed, or designed to house civilly committed individuals for months at a time, let alone six months or more.

37. Due to state and federal laws and regulations, medical ethics, and civil commitment orders, whenever OHA leaves civilly committed patients in Plaintiffs' community hospitals, Plaintiffs have no feasible options other than to continue housing the patients and providing basic care (i.e., administer medications) and consumable resources (i.e., food, toiletries, and other basic provisions) indefinitely. For a handful of civilly committed patients, tThis indefinite period can lasts for several weeks, multiple months and, sometimes, more than a year.

38. Plaintiffs cannot transfer the patients elsewhere because, almost always, there is nowhere for the patient to go. In general, tTransferring any patient to any less-suitable environment for that patient is inconsistent with Plaintiffs' missions to ensure high-quality, compassionate, and patient-centric care to all patients. Moreover, under state and federal law, Plaintiffs may transfer a patient to another hospital for treatment only if the other hospital both (1) is certified to care for civilly committed patients, and (2) has available beds. If there is no certified hospital with available beds that agrees to accept the civilly committed patient, the patient cannot be transferred and remains in Plaintiffs' hospitals with no realistic prospect of receiving the long-term treatment they require. Plaintiffs' hospitals, however, provide most available hospital beds in the entire State of Oregon. Out of approximately 460 licensed inpatient psychiatric treatment beds available across Oregon, 264 (57.4%) are in Plaintiffs' facilities. Because of the severity of Oregon's behavioral health crisis, all other Oregon beds that are designed for long-term treatment are typically full and have long closed waitlists. Even when such other facilities are not full, they often prioritize referrals from OSH, while referrals from acute care hospitals are given less priority. There simply is not enough available capacity in Oregon for Plaintiffs to transfer civilly committed patients to other facilities (whether for long-term treatment or otherwise).

39. Despite that OHA's mission statement is to "ensur[e] all people and communities can achieve optimum physical, mental, and social well-being," OHA has suggested that if Plaintiffs can no longer medically help a civilly committed patient left in Plaintiffs' care, Plaintiffs should simply discharge the civilly committed patient to the sidewalk.

40. But discharging civilly committed patients—as OHA recommends—would result in an unmitigated disaster for both patients and the community. As an initial matter, discharging civilly committed patients in this way would be the very opposite of serving Plaintiffs' missions to provide high-quality, compassionate, and patient-centric healthcare to its patients. Moreover, such discharges would violate both the law and court orders. A patient who is under civil commitment is, by definition, someone who presents a danger to themselves or others or who is "unable to provide for basic personal needs that are necessary to avoid serious physical harm in the near future." ORS 426.005(1)(f). Thus, if Plaintiffs followed OHA's recommendation and discharged civilly committed patients into the community without any discharge plan and with nowhere to go, there is a substantial chance that the patient would cause harm to themselves or others in the community. There is also a substantial likelihood that the individual—who is still suffering from a severe and insufficiently treated psychiatric condition or crisis—would be picked up by first responders and brought right back to one of Plaintiffs' emergency departments. Plaintiffs, meanwhile, would violate, among other laws, 42 C.F.R. § 482.43; 42 C.F.R. § 482.13; ORS 441.053(2), 441.054, OAR 333-505-0055, and OAR 333-520-0070(4), which require discharge of patients only in accordance with a discharge plan that considers and accommodates the individual needs of patients (which, for the patients at issue here, require long-term treatment). Plaintiffs would also violate EMTALA to the extent the patients are staying in beds in the emergency department.

41. Violations of these laws may result in fines and/or losses of Plaintiffs' licensure. Such violations would also harm Plaintiffs' reputations as hospitals and health systems that provide care for all patients of all walks of life and put patients' needs first. OHA knows, or at least certainly should know, that this is not a realistic option. In fact, it is the existence of these laws that has enabled OHA to outsource its obligation to care for civilly committed individuals to community hospitals.

42. As described above in paragraphs 33 and 34, Plaintiffs cannot avoid having civilly committed patients left in their care indefinitely by declining to acquire certification to treat civilly committed patients. Even if Plaintiffs were not certified to provide short-term treatment to civilly committed patients, Plaintiffs would still be required by law to receive, evaluate, and treat all patients who enter through the doors of their emergency rooms before civil commitment occurs. Plaintiffs would still have to hold and provide emergency psychiatric treatment to patients who are detained before commitment. Plaintiffs would still be prohibited by state and federal laws and regulations and medical ethics, from discharging the patient while civil commitment proceedings are ongoing. And, when patients are committed, Plaintiffs still would be unable to lawfully discharge the patient or transfer the patient to another hospital unless the other hospital (1) is certified, and (2) has available beds. If no other certified beds are available elsewhere, the patient would nonetheless remain in Plaintiffs' hospitals regardless of certification, because Plaintiffs would be legally prohibited from discharging the patient and there is nowhere else for the patient to go.

43. Indeed, if Plaintiffs withdrew their certifications, there would not be enough certified beds in the rest of the state to receive Plaintiffs' civilly committed patients. As noted, there are only 460 acute psychiatric beds in Oregon, and 264 of them (over 57%) are in Plaintiffs' hospitals. If Plaintiffs removed their 264 beds from the statewide pool, far more civilly committed patients would need to be transferred, yet far fewer licensed beds would be available in the rest of the state to receive them (as noted, those beds are already full and have long and often closed waitlists). Because Plaintiffs are four of Oregon's largest health systems and make up so much of Oregon's total psychiatric resources, the withdrawal of Plaintiffs' beds from the available certified pool would create an unprecedented shortage of psychiatric resources that would make it essentially certain that Plaintiffs would have no available places to send civilly committed patients left in their care. Instead, the patients would remain at the hospital and Plaintiffs would suffer the same or worse injuries as they do when certified.<sup>7</sup>

44. Plaintiffs' certification to provide short-term treatment to civilly committed patients does not amount to consent to be left with the responsibility to provide long-term treatment to such patients. To the contrary, the certification process is highly specific in distinguishing types of care. Hospitals are approved to provide only short-term treatment, and nothing more. Because civilly committed patients generally need multiple different kinds of treatment (i.e., emergency care, acute care, long-term treatment)—and each level of care requires different kinds of training, equipment, facilities, and so on to safely, effectively, and ethically provide—certification is treatment-specific so that patients who need a certain kind of care are not treated by acute care hospitals that are unable to provide that care safely, effectively, and ethically. See OAR 309-033-0530(1) (“Only hospitals . . . approved by the Division . . . shall provide care and treatment services for persons under civil commitment or for persons in custody . . .”). For purposes of certification, there are five “program types”:

- 1) Regional Acute Care Psychiatric Services for Adults
- 2) Hospital Hold and Seclusion Room Services (5 day Hold)
- 3) Hospital Transport Custody Services (12 Hour Transport Custody)

<sup>7</sup> As detailed below, OHA has repeatedly studied Oregon's shortage of behavioral health beds and is well aware of the catastrophe that would occur if Plaintiffs suddenly withdrew their participation from Oregon's behavioral health system.

4) Class I Secure Residential Treatment Facility (Non-hospital facility), approved to be locked to prevent a person from leaving the facility, to use seclusion and restraint and to involuntarily administer psychiatric medication

5) Class II Secure Residential Treatment Facility (Non-hospital facility), approved to be locked to prevent a person from leaving the facility

45. Plaintiffs Providence and Unity applied to be certified for “Hospital Hold and Seclusion Room Services (5 day Hold).” Plaintiff PeaceHealth applied to be certified for “Regional Acute Care Psychiatric Services for Adults.” Plaintiff St. Charles applied to be certified for both. Both program types refer to short-term treatment. A hospital hold occurs before a person is committed and cannot exceed five judicial days, and “Regional Acute Care Psychiatric Services” means “stabilization, control, and/or amelioration of acute dysfunctional symptoms or behaviors that result in the earliest possible return of the person individual to a less restrictive environment.” OAR 309-0323-0870710(24) (emphasis added). Plaintiffs did not apply to provide long-term treatment, and OHA has neither evaluated Plaintiffs’ hospitals nor deemed them suitable for such treatment. Yet OHA purposely leaves civilly committed patients who no longer need emergency or acute psychiatric care, and who instead need long-term treatment, in Plaintiffs’ hospitals indefinitely. In short, OHA effectively has outsourced its responsibility to ensure adequate treatment for civilly committed patients to Plaintiffs’ hospitals, without their consent and to the detriment of patients, the community, and Plaintiffs’ hospitals.

46. ~~Further,~~ Due to the complex interplay between federal and state laws and regulations, Plaintiffs have no choice but to become certified for at least some of the program types above to avoid violating the law and jeopardizing Plaintiffs’ licensure and funding. This is because, among other reasons, OHA requires hospitals to be approved and certified in order to provide “care and treatment services for persons under civil commitment or for persons in

Given all the circumstances described above, if Plaintiffs failed to become certified, Plaintiffs inevitably would be forced to, among other things, provide treatment to civilly committed persons/patients without certification to do so.

E. OHA’s conduct, policy, and practice ~~hurtsarms both patients and community hospitals.~~

47. OHA harms civilly committed patients by failing to meet its duty to ensure patients in need of long-term treatment receive it, and deliberately leaving patients indefinitely in community hospitals that are not equipped or staffed to provide such treatment. This leads to an unconscionable situation where individuals are denied the care that justifies their commitment in the first place and that they are constitutionally entitled to receive. As a result, the patient’s liberty is unnecessarily curtailed, the patient does not meaningfully recover and becomes more likely to be re-committed, and the very purpose of civil commitment is undermined.

8. The following stories represent just some of the harrowing experiences<sup>48</sup>.

OHA knows that it is harming civilly committed patients ~~have endured after being committed to OHA and then left to languish but continues to do it anyways. For example, in community hospitals indefinitely, without access to appropriate long term treatment.~~

9. In late 2021, an individual was brought by ambulance to the emergency department of a community hospital after assaulting another resident at his group home. He was on a trial visit after having been initially committed for 180 days in late 2020, and then recommitted for another 180 days. Once evaluated in the emergency department, he revealed that he was acting on command auditory hallucinations. Given his risk of assaultive behavior, he was admitted to the acute behavioral health unit. The court then revoked his trial visit and remanded him to the custody of OHA. The order should have resulted in him being transferred to an appropriate long term placement. But that did not happen, and he remained in the community hospital. The court subsequently renewed his commitment for an additional 180 days. This order,

~~too, should have resulted in him being transferred to an appropriate long term placement. But again, that did not happen and he remained indefinitely in a restrictive acute care setting. During his admission, the patient exhibited exceptionally aggressive behavior that was instantaneous and unpredictable. He assaulted a nurse which resulted in a concussion, verbally threatened to kill staff, threw objects at his care team, and cornered a nurse in the hallway. As a result of his threatening and disruptive behavior, staff called out for their own mental health, voluntary patients left, and one staff member resigned. The attending physician described the patient as “ONE OF THE MOST DANGEROUS patients [he had] treated on an acute unit in [his] 30 plus years as a psychiatrist.” The community hospital tried to get the patient admitted to OSH, but he was denied expedited admission three times. On one of the denials, a physician from OSH said “off the record” that the patient would almost have to kill someone to get in that way. Ultimately, it took intervention<sup>8</sup> in the civil commitment case by the hospital, until two days before a hearing, OSH finally offered expedited admission. Had there been a hearing, the court would have heard that this civilly committed individual spent over five months confined in a restrictive setting, where he was only allowed to walk outside his room for 10-15 minutes per shift, could not safely go outside for fresh air, and wore scrubs every day. The court would have heard that this civilly committed individual spent 165 days in a community hospital, with no placement decision ever being made by OHA to whom he was committed for treatment.~~

~~In another instance in late 2021, an individual with chronic schizophrenia was arrested for threatening pedestrians with a knife. Officers intervened in time, but had to use tasers, less than lethal ammunition, and pepper spray to subdue him. He was arrested and taken to jail. Officials asked to transfer him to OSH, but OSH denied the request. He was then placed on a magistrate’s hold, which required him to be transported to a community hospital due to the court’s belief that~~

<sup>8</sup> Plaintiffs have intervened in civil commitment cases on several occasions to advocate for their patients to receive appropriate long term placements. Nevertheless, it is clear that intervention will not be enough to create meaningful change because OHA has continued to use community hospitals to house civilly committed individuals indefinitely, if not permanently.

~~he was an imminent danger to self or others. Once in the emergency department, he was placed on a notice of mental illness where he was held until being transferred to the behavioral health unit and subsequently involuntarily committed to the custody of OHA for 180 days of treatment.~~
~~Again, after the commitment committed to the custody of OHA for 180 days of treatment.~~
However, after the order was entered, OHA deliberately failed to make any placement decision for him, and instead left him to languish in ~~the~~ community hospital for almost his entire commitment. The patient spent more than four months (a total of 137 days) confined in a restrictive setting, where he spent his days in a small room, ~~and crying in anguish~~ because he wanted to get out of the hospital. ~~Ultimately, it took intervention in the civil commitment case by the community. The hospital, a full day hearing, and several rounds of briefing and orders from the trial and appellate courts until OHA complied and he was discharged could not release or transfer this patient, and sought to a secure residential treatment facility in the spring of 2022 provide the best care it could.~~

10. — In early 2022, an individual with impulsive and unpredictable behavior motivated by psychosis was admitted to an acute care hospital. This patient had a lengthy history of psychiatric hospitalizations and interactions with the criminal justice system, including convictions for attempted kidnapping, assault in the fourth degree, and strangulation. She was involuntarily committed to OHA for 180 days of treatment on February 11. However, she remained in the acute care hospital for the next 49 days. During that time, she required a one-on-one sitter 24 hours a day, and frequently endorsed suicidal ideation with a plan to overdose and homicidal ideation towards her family. She was hypersexual towards male patients and assaulted several staff members. After 90 days, she was discharged on a trial visit, but she rapidly decompensated in the community and was sent to jail. After her trial visit failed, OHA should have taken custody of her. But that did not happen. Instead, she was sent back to the acute care hospital. Due to her psychotic symptoms, the hospital was unable to keep other patients and staff safe from her explosive and violent outbursts. She spent approximately 96 hours in seclusion.

52. OHA's ~~practices deprive conduct, policy, and practice deprives~~ Plaintiffs of their property without due process of law and ~~effectuate effectuates~~ a taking of Plaintiffs' property as OHA forces community hospitals to indefinitely hold and care for civilly committed individuals who, by law, have been committed to the custody of OHA for treatment. Although OHA provides Plaintiffs with a small amount of reimbursement for holding civilly committed patients, the reimbursement received is inadequate, ~~causing financial harm, and does not cover costs of care, causing financial harm. Additionally, OHA does not require their Coordinated Care Organizations to contract with all Oregon hospitals who are certified to provide care, resulting in inadequate reimbursement for necessary medical care and no consequences for having failed network panel adequacy as required by their contracts.~~ In addition, Plaintiffs incur additional expenses for additional staff and workers' compensation costs, property damage, and room closures, for which they are not reimbursed. Plaintiffs are all ~~non-profits~~nonprofits, but their behavioral health units are suffering unsustainable losses that amount to tens of millions of dollars a year. 54. The negative impact of OHA's practices, conduct, failures, and inaction on Plaintiffs and other Oregon community hospitals are severe and ongoing. Because the patients are civilly committed, they can only be discharged to secure settings, or else must be kept in the hospital until they no longer meet commitment criteria. F. Rather than engage meaningfully with D.F. Despite having ample opportunities to address the problem, OHA has failed to find a solution for civilly committed individuals and blamed the counties and nonprofit care providers.

13.—55. Over the past several years, Plaintiffs have pledgeddevoted significant time, energy, money, and other resources to plead with OHA for assistance and support in findingproviding appropriate long-term placements for civilly committed individuals countless times. Plaintiffs have asked OHA to seek more resources, expand services, and build capacity rather than detain civilly committed individuals indefinitely in restrictive acute care settings. Plaintiffs have offered to collaborate with OHA to find, or invent, a workable solution. Almost without exception, OHA has been unresponsive and has failed to provide a solution for the patients for whom it is responsible.

In fact, Plaintiffs have also asked OHA to hold the Coordinated Care Organizations accountable for reimbursement for their members who are placed in non-contracted hospitals. OHA has gone so far asalso failed to deny having any responsibilityprovide a solution for civilly committedthese patients and asserting that all its responsibility has been delegated to counties. In sworn testimony to a trial court on February 11, 2022, OHA's behavioral health director Steve Allen testified as follows:for whom their contracted entities are responsible.

56. OHA's failure to provide appropriate and legally required treatment to civilly committed individuals—and the negative impact on patients and Oregon's community hospitals—is well known to OHA. A 2017 study for OHA concluded: "Patients at the state hospital for aid and assist take up beds that could be used for civil commitment patients. This results in more civilly committed individuals waiting in acute care for a state hospital bed to open up. This decreases the access to acute care beds, which causes a backup in the ED. 15 to civilly committed patients, true?

16 A Yes.

17 Q And is it your testimony that those
18 responsibilities have all been delegated to Oregon
19 counties?

20 A I'm not -- I can't -- I'm not picking up an 21 example particular to this case that that isn't.

In testimony Despite having known of its practices since 2017, OHA has continued to the legislature on February 18, 2022, Mr. Allen testified as follows with respect to OHA’s role in providing appropriate treatment ignore its obligations and knowingly reduced long-term placement options for civilly committed patients: “we don’t actually do the work.”<sup>10</sup> over that time.

14. And in sworn testimony to a trial court on August 24, 2022, Defendant Patrick Allen, testifying for OHA, would not answer whether OHA had responsibility to an individual committed to OHA for 180 days of treatment as a civilly committed individual. Instead, Mr. Allen testified that OHA had delegated responsibility for civilly committed patients to the county and that “they would have the primary responsibility.”

57. In 2023, Oregon Governor Tina Kotek directed OHA to lead a new study to evaluate Oregon's behavioral health facility capacity, including whether Oregon had enough psychiatric and residential treatment beds across the state. OHA contracted with Public Consulting Group LLC ("PCG") to complete the study. PCG issued its final report in June 2024 ("OHA Report"). Notably, the OHA Report shows that Oregon needs more than 3,700 adult behavioral health treatment beds across the continuum of care to close gaps in the current system of care and ensure Oregonians have access to the appropriate level of care. The OHA Report makes several findings, which squarely confirm that Oregon has a behavioral health treatment bed shortage of constitutional magnitude and that as a result, hospitals cannot transfer patients elsewhere to receive the appropriate level of care because, almost always, there is nowhere for them to go. Among other things, it projects that an additional 486 acute psychiatric inpatient beds are initially needed to meet demand. It also reveals a severe shortage of beds in secure residential treatment facilities (SRTF): there are 510 SRTF beds in Oregon—but because 165 beds are at OSH and "are not readily accessible to those in a community setting," this "limits the total number of SRTF beds available within the State to 345, which strains the care continuum for this type of bed." According to the OHA Report, even if 77 SRTF beds are added by next year, Oregon will still need another 198 SRTF beds to meet demand. The OHA Report notes that, due to the lack of beds, hospitals offering emergency services experience "[e]xtended wait times" in transferring patients to other facilities, which "often [leads] to individuals spending multiple days or weeks in the emergency department while waiting for available placements." It describes how community partners shared concerns that "there is nowhere to place individuals experiencing a mental health crisis" and that "[o]ften, these individuals must stay in the facilities' emergency department, putting a strain on available resources."

58. Despite having ample opportunities to deliberate, OHA has indifferently indicated no serious intent or interest in changing its ways. OHA officials apathetically shrug their shoulders and say that they lack funding to address the problem, that Plaintiffs will simply have to keep forfeiting their property, and—most troublingly—that civilly committed patients will simply have to continue foregoing needed long-term treatment, despite being entitled to it.

59. OHA may not ~~delegate~~outsource its ultimate responsibility to provide constitutionally adequate care to civilly committed patients. By law, OHA is responsible for ensuring that civilly committed individuals receive appropriate long-term ~~placement~~treatment because civilly committed individuals are committed to OHA, not the county or a community mental health program. ORS -426.130(1)(a)(C) (the court may “order commitment of the person with mental illness to the Oregon Health Authority for treatment”); ORS 426.060(1) (“[c]ommittments to the Oregon Health Authority ~~are only to shall~~ be made only by ~~a~~the judge of a circuit court in a county of this state.”). As such, Plaintiffs seek declaratory and injunctive relief against OHA’s unlawful practices.

CAUSES OF ACTION

G. Plaintiffs have third-party standing to advocate for civilly committed patients.

60. Plaintiffs have standing to assert claims on behalf of civilly committed patients being cared for in Plaintiffs’ hospitals. Plaintiffs’ interests as healthcare providers are closely aligned with the interests of their patients on these issues. As healthcare providers, Plaintiffs have inherently close, fiduciary, and confidential relationships with patients. Plaintiffs’ care teams (including doctors, nurses, and staff members) provide patients with medical and psychiatric treatment. Hospitals provide patients with healthcare and housing and safeguard patients’ confidential information. Protection of patients’ rights, and ensuring patients receive the appropriate care, is integral to Plaintiffs’ missions to provide high-quality, compassionate, and patient-centric care to patients and the community.

61. Plaintiffs’ interests in this case are further aligned with those of their civilly committed patients because the ~~only~~ relief Plaintiffs seek in this case will only benefit, and not harm, Plaintiffs’ patients. Plaintiffs’ desired relief—(1) for civilly committed patients to have access to the most appropriate and least restrictive long-term treatment options once they are ready for such care, and (2) for Plaintiffs to be able to treat more civilly committed patients who enter through their emergency rooms—aligns with patients' interests. If Plaintiffs are successful in this lawsuit, it will result in civilly committed patients having access to the most appropriate and least restrictive long-term treatment options, while opening more beds for detained and civilly committed patients in need of emergency and acute care. In short, successfully compelling OHA to cease its unconstitutional practices will stop injuries to both patients and Plaintiffs simultaneously.

62. Plaintiffs are not seeking any relief that will result in fewer placement options for civilly committed patients, the creation of less-suitable placement options for Plaintiffs' patients, or that will allow for the premature discharge of Plaintiffs' patients to inappropriate settings. Critically, Plaintiffs seek no relief in which a patient receiving treatment at Plaintiffs' hospitals will receive less treatment at Plaintiffs' hospitals, unless and until more suitable treatment for that patient is available elsewhere and it is in the patients' best interests to receive that treatment. Nor are Plaintiffs seeking to treat fewer or less-acute civilly committed patients. Indeed, any such outcomes would contravene Plaintiffs' missions to ensure high-quality, compassionate, and patient-centric healthcare for patients and the community. The only outcome Plaintiffs will be satisfied with is one in which OHA creates more treatment options for Plaintiffs' patients, in addition to those that already exist within Plaintiffs' hospitals and elsewhere in Oregon.<sup>11</sup> Unless and until OHA ensures that additional treatment options are available, Plaintiffs will continue treating all civilly committed patients in their care—as Plaintiffs have for decades—in accordance with Plaintiffs' patient-focused nonprofit missions.

63. Civilly committed patients face several hindrances from bringing an action for injunctive relief themselves, in which they would seek for OHA to provide constitutionally adequate treatment during the period of their commitment. First, civilly committed patients are generally committed for 180 days, making it likely that their injuries and equitable claims for relief will become moot before litigation can run its course. Second, civilly committed patients face a recognized stigma for their commitment and thus are inherently disincentivized from bringing a public action related to their commitment.<sup>12</sup> See generally State v. T.T., 293 Or. App. 376, 386, 428 P.3d 921, 927 (2018) (Aoyagi, J., dissenting) (noting the “serious . . . social stigma . . . attendant to a civil commitment”); Pa. Psychiatric Soc'y v. Green Spring Health Servs., Inc., 280 F.3d 278, 290 (3rd Cir. 2002) (“[t]he stigma associated with receiving mental health services presents a considerable deterrent to litigation.”). Third, civilly committed patients suffer from severe mental illnesses that often involve severe symptoms including psychosis, hallucinations, and delusions. This makes it exceptionally difficult for them to advocate for themselves or even find and hire someone to advocate for them.<sup>13</sup> And finally, civilly committed patients may lack the resources to pursue litigation of this scale. Pa. Psychiatric Soc'y, 280 F.3d at 290. These obstacles have all been deemed sufficient hindrances to justify third-party standing. Singleton v. Wulff, 428 U.S. 106, 117 (1976); Pa. Psychiatric Soc'y, 280 F.3d at 291–92.

<sup>11</sup> OHA could expand available treatment options by, among other things, funding the creation of additional independent or state-run SRTFs throughout Oregon, or expanding bed capacity at OSH, or both.

CLAIMS

FIRST CLAIM

Violation of Civilly Committed Individuals’ Substantive Due Process Rights Under the Due Process Clause of the Fourteenth Amendment to the United States Constitution

<sup>12</sup> There is a reason civil commitment court case files are closed to the public.

<sup>13</sup> Patients are generally assigned no one to advocate on their behalf because Oregon’s civil commitment scheme does not provide them with counsel after the point of commitment. While individuals who are detained have a right to counsel during the court process leading up to an order of commitment, that representation ends at the time the order is entered. Having been civilly committed, individuals are no longer represented by counsel to protect their rights. They are lost to the oversight of the courts that have committed them, as is OHA, which disclaims responsibility for their care.

65. All individuals have the constitutional right not to be deprived of liberty without due process of law. U.S. Const. amend. XIV, § 1. Involuntarily detaining a person due to mental illness is “a massive curtailment of liberty.” Humphrey, 405 U.S. at 509.

66. The Due Process Clause of the Fourteenth Amendment protects two distinct but related rights: procedural due process and substantive due process. Procedural due process prohibits governmental deprivation of liberty without adequate procedure. Cleveland Bd. Of Educ. v. Loudermill, 470 U.S. 532, 541 (1985). Substantive due process forbids the government from depriving a person of liberty in such a way that “shocks the conscience” or “interferes with rights implicit in the concept of ordered liberty.” Emmert Indus. Corp. v. City of Milwaukie, 450 F. Supp. 2d 1164, 1175 (D. Or. 2006) (quoting Nunez v. City of Los Angeles, 147 F.3d 867, 871 (9th Cir. 1998)). Liberty interests “may arise from either of two sources: the due process clause itself or state law.” Carver v. Lehman, 558 F.3d 869, 872 (9th Cir. 2009).

67. Civilly committed individuals have a constitutional liberty interest in being free from bodily restraint. The state may involuntarily detain individuals for purposes of providing treatment; however, individuals who are involuntarily detained for this purpose “have a liberty interest in receiving restorative treatment.” Mink, 322 F.3d at 1121. Due process requires that mentally ill persons who are detained receive treatment calculated to lead to the end of their involuntary detention. Id. To that end, states must provide all civilly committed persons with access to mental health treatment that gives them “a realistic opportunity to be cured or to improve [the] mental condition” for which they were confined. Ohlinger, 652 F.2d at 779. “Adequate and effective treatment is constitutionally required because, absent treatment, [civilly committed persons] could be held indefinitely as a result of their mental illness.” Id. at 778.

68. Pursuant to 42 U.S.C. § 1983, every person acting under color of law who deprives another person of his or her constitutional rights is liable at law and in equity. At all times relevant, Defendant Patrick Allen Sejal Hathi, MD, was a person acting under color of state law who is liable for OHA’s unconstitutional conduct, policy, and practice.

69. For years, OHA has engaged in conduct and a policy and practice that violates civilly committed individuals' right to substantive and procedural due process. OHA's conduct, policy, and practice violates civilly committed individuals' liberty interest in restorative treatment and deprives them of a realistic opportunity to be cured or improve the mental condition for which they were confined. When OHA leaves civilly committed individuals indefinitely in acute care community hospitals, they do not receive access to specialized treatment, care, and training oriented to their long-term needs and focused on their reentry into the community. Instead, they remain confined in unnecessary, overly-restrictive acute care settings without access to long-term treatment for weeks, months, and sometimes their entire 180-day commitment. As a result of OHA's practices, they are more likely to be recommitted and cycle through the system over and over again.

70. OHA lacks legitimate state interests in leaving civilly committed patients in unnecessary, overly restrictive acute care settings where patients do not receive access to minimally constitutionally adequate long-term treatment and transition services. Despite knowing of its practices for years, OHA has deliberately avoided addressing these problems, at least in part because OHA directly benefits from its practices by effectively outsourcing the civil commitment processsystem to community hospitals and making community hospitals bear OHA's would-be costs, responsibilities, and liabilities.

71. There is no state law procedure for community hospitals to ensure civilly committed individuals are placed by OHA in the facility best able to treat them or a suitable facility during their 180-day commitment, so they can receive appropriate long-term treatment. _____

72. OHA will continue engaging in its conduct, policy, and practice in violation of the Fourteenth Amendment unless the Court enjoins such conduct. As demonstrated by its inaction, despite repeated pleas to OHA for help over the years, it is clear that OHA intends to continue using community hospitals to house civilly committed individuals indefinitely, if not

SECOND CLAIM

Violation of Civilly Committed Individuals' Procedural Due Process Rights Under the Fourteenth Amendment to the United States Constitution

76. There is no adequate state law procedure for either community hospitals or civilly committed patients to contest civilly committed patients' forced housing in community hospitals. Although Oregon regulations purport to provide an appeal mechanism for patients who desire assignment to a different facility, the procedure is illusory and futile and, further, provides for no due process before a patient is deprived of liberty. Neither community hospitals nor civilly committed patients are being afforded a meaningful opportunity to be heard regarding whether civilly committed patients should be committed remain in Plaintiffs' community hospitals for long-term treatment lasting up to 180 days. Rather, OHA is simply leaving patients at Plaintiffs' hospitals without any meaningful process. Nor is there a remedy available for civilly committed patients to seek compensation from OHA or their contracted Coordinated Care Organizations for costs associated with OHA forcibly housing civilly committed individuals.

80. The Due Process Clause of the Fourteenth Amendment provides that states shall not "deprive any person of life, liberty, or property without due process of law." U.S. Const. amend. XIV, §-1. The Due Process Clause "specially protects those fundamental rights and liberties which are, objectively, deeply rooted in the Nation's history and tradition, and implicit in the concept of ordered liberty, such that neither liberty nor justice would exist if they were sacrificed." Washington v. Glucksberg, 521 U.S. 702, 720–21 (1997). The right to exclude others from an owner's property and to use the property as the owner sees fit is one such fundamental right. Lingle v. Chevron U.S.A., Inc., 544 U.S. 528, 539 (2005).

81. The Due Process Clause of the Fourteenth Amendment protects two distinct but related rights: procedural due process and substantive due process. Procedural due process prohibits governmental deprivation of liberty and property rights without adequate procedure.

At all times relevant, Defendant Patrick Allen Sejal Hathi, MD, was a person acting under color of state law who is liable for OHA’s unconstitutional conduct, policy, and practice.

83. For years, OHA has engaged in conduct and a policy and practice that violates Plaintiffs’ and other community hospitals’ right to substantive and procedural due process. Specifically, OHA has knowingly and/or deliberately failed to build or otherwise ensure the availability of long-term treatment capacity for individuals who have been civilly committed to its care under ORS 426.060. OHA has failed to do so for no reason that furthers public health, safety, or welfare. Rather, OHA has failed to do so because it purportedly lacks funding to provide care for such patients and wishes to avoid devoting necessary funding and resources to such patients, regardless of any violation of their (or Plaintiffs’) constitutional rights. OHA does this despite knowing of the detrimental consequences for patients and hospitals and, moreover, that multiple federal courts have ruled OHA’s reasons to be insufficient as a matter of law, see Ohlinger, 652 F.2d at 779, *Or. relevant community hospital is required~~having~~ to house the individual for weeks, months, and sometimes their entire 180-day commitment and recommitment period. As a result, community hospitals are deprived of using their hospital beds for other patients in need of emergency and acute psychiatric care (including other detained and civilly committed patients), which negatively impacts community hospitals' ability to serve the community and have throughput in their emergency departments, which are often full of patients waiting to be admitted. Because of OHA's failure to comply with its statutory obligations, Plaintiffs and other community hospitals must dedicate significant resources to civilly committed patients who have no medical reason to be in acute care settings, preventing Plaintiffs from providing emergency psychiatric and acute behavioral care to other patients who do have a medical reason to be in acute care settings (including other civilly committed individuals or pre-commitment individuals, to whom Plaintiffs want to provide emergency psychiatric and acute behavioral treatment). These resources include not only the costs associated with medicating and housing these individuals for extended periods of time, but also damage to hospital property as well as the services of its care providers and other precautions needed, such as security and one-on-one sitters, to ensure the safety of the individual and others.

85. OHA has known about its practices—and the resulting effects on community hospitals—for years but has failed to meaningfully address these problems. OHA has deliberately and indifferently avoided addressing these problems at least in part because OHA directly benefits from its practices, and the resulting harm to community hospitals and patients, by effectively outsourcing the civil commitment processsystem to community hospitals and making community hospitals bear OHA's would-be costs, responsibilities, and liabilities.

86. OHA will continue engaging in its policy and practice in violation of the Due Process Clause of the Fourteenth Amendment unless the Court enjoins such conduct. Declaratory and injunctive relief are appropriate because Plaintiffs lack an adequate remedy at law.

FOURTH CLAIM

Violation of Community Hospitals' Procedural Due Process Rights Under the Fourteenth Amendment to the United States Constitution

90. There is no adequate state law procedure for community hospitals to contest being forced to house civilly committed individuals indefinitely during their 180-day commitment. Although Oregon civil commitment procedure involves a process by which OHA or its delegatee consults with the admitting physician of a hospital to "determine whether the best interests of a committed person are served by an admission to [that] community hospital," OAR -309-033-0270(3)(a), that procedure is not being followed. Plaintiffs are not being afforded a meaningful opportunity to be heard regarding whether a civilly committed patient should be committed to Plaintiffs' community hospitals for long-term treatment lasting up to 180 days. Rather, OHA is simply leaving patients at Plaintiffs' hospitals without any meaningful process. Nor is there a remedy available for community hospitals to seek compensation from OHA or their contracted Coordinated Care Organizations for most of its costs associated with OHA forcing them to house civilly committed individuals in lieu of OHA providing placements for them at OSH or another in an appropriate long-term treatment facility. OHA's policy and practice has resulted in working conditions for Plaintiffs' care providers that many find intolerable. As a result, an already difficult workforce shortage has become a crisis. The strains on Plaintiffs' care

95. The Takings Clause “was designed to bar Government from forcing some people alone to bear public burdens which, in all fairness and justice, should be borne by the public as a whole.” Armstrong v. United States, 364 U.S. 40, 49 (1960). The prohibition ~~extends not only to a includes physical takings in which the government condemns or physically appropriates an owner’s real and personal property, but also regulatory interferences which occur when a significant restriction is placed on an owner’s ability to use its own property for which justice and fairness require that compensation be given.~~ Cedar Point Nursery v. Hassid, 141 S. Ct. 2063, 2071–72 (2021).

96. Pursuant to 42 U.S.C. § 1983, every person acting under color of law who deprives another person of his or her constitutional rights is liable at law and in equity. At all times relevant, Defendant ~~Patrick Allen Sejal Hathi, MD~~, was a person acting under color of state law who is liable for OHA’s unconstitutional conduct, policy, and practice.

97. For years, OHA has engaged in conduct and a policy and practice that results in a physical taking of Plaintiffs’ and other community hospitals’ property for public use without just compensation. Once ~~a general judgment of commitment is entered and~~ individuals are stabilized and civilly committed to the custody of OHA for up to 180 days of treatment, they are supposed to be transferred to an appropriate long-term treatment facility. OHA is supposed to ensure they are transferred to the facility best able to treat them or a suitable facility ~~at the time of commitment~~. Instead, however, after individuals are civilly committed—and as a result no longer represented by counsel to protect their rights—these individuals are left indefinitely in restrictive and confined settings in acute care hospitals, ~~where they are forgotten by OHA~~.

98. Because civilly committed individuals who are committed to the custody of OHA for treatment are occupying community hospital beds for weeks, months, and sometimes their entire 180-day commitment and recommitment periods, OHA’s conduct deprives Plaintiffs and other community hospitals of their hospital beds. It results in beds being unnecessarily occupied by civilly committed individuals who have no medical reason to be in an acute care setting, and prevents other acute psychiatric patients in the community from accessing much needed care, including patients who are backed up in emergency departments. Because of OHA's actions, community hospitals are deprived of the services of its care providers, forced to incur costs associated with housing patients who should be elsewhere, and left with no choice but to devote significant resources to patients who have no medical reason to be there, including medication, food, housekeeping services, security, and one-to-one sitters 24 hours a day.

99. OHA ~~does and their contracted Coordinated Care Organizations do~~ not provide sufficient compensation to cover the costs and fair value of Plaintiffs' property used to care for civilly committed patients left at Plaintiffs' hospitals.

100. OHA will continue engaging in its conduct, policy, and practice in violation of the Fifth and Fourteenth Amendments unless the Court enjoins such conduct. As demonstrated by its inaction, despite repeated pleas to OHA for help over the years, ~~it is clear that~~ OHA intends to continue using Plaintiffs' hospitals and other community hospitals to house civilly committed individuals indefinitely, if not permanently. Declaratory and injunctive relief are appropriate because community hospitals lack an adequate remedy at law.

101. ~~Seeking just compensation for OHA's repeated deprivations of Plaintiffs' property would require Plaintiffs to repeatedly litigate a multiplicity of suits involving the same and similar repeated deprivations of property as long as OHA's practices continues indefinitely. This is an inadequate remedy.~~ Plaintiffs cannot feasibly seek adequate and just compensation through individual legal actions for each civilly committed patient left in Plaintiffs' care because, ~~among other reasons,~~ the expenses of pursuing so many individual legal actions ~~would may~~ exceed the compensation Plaintiffs seek to recover. ~~By contrast, equitable relief that includes a declaration and injunction will protect Plaintiffs from OHA's current ongoing and future harms.~~

102. Plaintiffs accordingly seek a declaration that OHA's conduct, policy, and practice violates Plaintiffs' and other community hospitals' Fifth and Fourteenth Amendment rights.

Violation of Title II of the Americans with Disabilities Act, 42 U.S.C. §§ 12131 et seq., 28 C.F.R. § 35.130

105. Title II of the Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA) provides that “no qualified individual with a disability shall, by reason of such disability, be excluded from participation in or be denied the benefits of the services, programs, or activities of a public entity, or be subjected to discrimination by any such entity.” 42 U.S.C. § 12132.

opportunity, full participation, independent living, and economic self-sufficiency for such individuals.” 42 U.S.C. § 12101(a)(7).

107. More than 25 years ago, in Olmstead v. L.C. ex rel. Zimring, 527 U.S. 581, 597 (1999), the United States Supreme Court held that the unnecessary institutionalization of individuals with disabilities is a form of discrimination prohibited under Title II of the ADA.

108. The regulations implementing Title II of the ADA similarly state that “[a] public entity shall administer services, programs, and activities in the most integrated setting appropriate to the needs of qualified individuals with disabilities.” 28 C.F.R. § 35.130(d); Olmstead, 527 U.S. at 592 (quoting Title II regulation). The integration mandate of Title II of the ADA protects both people who are currently institutionalized and people with disabilities who are at risk of re-institutionalization. See, e.g., M.R. v. Dreyfus, 697 F.3d 706, 720, 734 (9th Cir. 2012).

109. Civilly committed patients have severe mental illnesses that substantially limit one or more major life activities. Civilly committed patients are qualified individuals with disabilities within the meaning of Title II of the ADA and meet the essential eligibility requirements for the receipt of services, programs, or activities of OHA. 42 U.S.C. § 12131(2).

110. OHA is a public entity as used in Title II of the ADA. 42 U.S.C. § 12131(1)(B). Defendant, acting in her official capacity, is a public entity as defined by the ADA, 42 U.S.C. § 12131, and its implementing regulations, 28 C.F.R. § 35.104.

111. Title II of the ADA prohibits OHA from discriminating against civilly committed patients in its services, programs, and activities. 42 U.S.C. § 12132.

112. Treatment professionals at Plaintiffs’ community hospitals believe that community-based treatment is appropriate for civilly committed patients who have stabilized and are ready for that level of treatment. Civilly committed patients do not oppose community-based treatment. These services can be reasonably accommodated.

113. Despite that, OHA has institutionalized civilly committed patients, or placed them at serious risk of institutionalization, in Plaintiffs' acute care hospitals, even though they need community-based treatment, in violation of the integration mandate.

114. OHA's unnecessary institutionalization of civilly committed individuals is exactly the sort of unlawful discrimination prohibited by Title II of the ADA under the Supreme Court's landmark Olmstead decision. OHA is legally obligated to administer its services, programs, and activities to civilly committed patients in the most integrated setting appropriate to their needs, 28 C.F.R § 35.130(d), and is prohibited from unjustifiably institutionalizing and segregating them during their entire 180-day commitment. See Olmstead, 527 U.S. at 587.

115. OHA violates the ADA, and its implementing regulations, including as follows:

a. By administering the state's mental health system in a way that subjects civilly committed patients to unnecessary institutionalization in acute care community hospitals instead of providing them with community-based treatment resources.42 U.S.C. § 12132.

b. By directly or through contractual, licensing, or other arrangements, providing aids, benefits, or services in such a way that denies civilly committed patients the opportunity to participate in or benefit from such aids, benefits, or services; failing to afford civilly committed patients an equal opportunity to participate in or benefit from such aids, benefits, or services; providing aids, benefits, or services in such a way that civilly committed patients are not afforded equal opportunity to obtain the same result as that provided to others; and by otherwise limiting civilly committed patients in the enjoyment of a right, privilege, advantage, or opportunity enjoyed by others receiving the aid, benefit, or service. 28 C.F.R. § 35.130(b)(1).

c. By directly or through contractual or other arrangements utilizing criteria or methods of administration ~~of~~in the state's mental health system that subject civilly committed patients to discrimination on the basis of their disabilities. 28 C.F.R. § 35.130(b)(3).

de. By failing to administer services, programs, and activities in “the most integrated setting” appropriate to the needs of civilly committed patients. 28 C.F.R. § 35.130(d).

ed. By failing to make reasonable modifications to allow civilly committed patients to participate in OHA’s services, programs, and activities in an integrated community setting. 28 C.F.R. § 35.130(b)(7).

116. Providing civilly committed patients with the community-based treatment resources they need to avoid unnecessary institutionalization would not fundamentally alter OHA’s programs, services, or activities.

117. As a result of OHA’s actions and inactions, civilly committed patients have suffered and will continue to suffer irreparable harm, discrimination, institutionalization, and the inability to access community-based mental health services and support.

118. In the absence of declaratory and injunctive relief, OHA will continue to institutionalize and deny civilly committed patients their right to live in the most integrated setting appropriate to their needs.

119. Plaintiffs seek only declaratory relief, injunctive relief, and recovery of their attorneys’ fees and costs in bringing this action.

SEVENTH CLAIM

Violation of Section 504 of the Rehabilitation Act, 29 U.S.C. § 794, 28 C.F.R. § 41.51

120. Plaintiffs reallege and incorporate by reference paragraphs 1 through 119 above.

121. Section 504 of the Rehabilitation Act mandates that “[n]o otherwise qualified individual with a disability . . . shall, solely by reason of her or his disability, be excluded from the participation in, be denied the benefits of, or be subjected to discrimination under any program or activity receiving Federal financial assistance.” 29 U.S.C. § 794(a).

122. The Rehabilitation Act contains an “integration mandate” requiring covered entities to provide any aid, benefit, and service that affords people with disabilities “equal opportunity to obtain the same result, to gain the same benefit, or to reach the same level of achievement” . . . “in the most integrated setting appropriate to the person’s needs.” 28 C.F.R. § 41.51(b)(1)(iii), (d).

123. Civilly committed patients are qualified individuals with disabilities entitled to the protections of the Rehabilitation Act. See 29 U.S.C. § 705(20)(B) (citing to the ADA’s definition at 42 U.S.C. § 12102). The Rehabilitation Act defines a “program or activity,” in pertinent part, as “all of the operations of a department [or] agency . . . of a State or of a local government.” 29 U.S.C. § 794(b)(1)(A).

124. OHA is a governmental agency that receives “federal financial assistance” as used in the Rehabilitation Act and operates programs or activities within the meaning of Section 504. See 29 U.S.C. § 794(b)(1)(A). Defendant, acting in her official capacity, administers programs or activities as defined by the Rehabilitation Act, 29 U.S.C. § 794(b), and its implementing regulations, 28 C.F.R. § 41.51.

125. OHA is engaged in providing programs or activities receiving Federal financial assistance sufficient to invoke the coverage of Section 504. 29 U.S.C. § 794(b)(1), (b)(3).

126. Treatment professionals at Plaintiffs’ hospitals believe that community-based treatment is appropriate for civilly committed patients who have stabilized and are ready for that level of treatment. Civilly committed patients do not oppose community-based treatment. These services can be reasonably accommodated. Despite that, OHA has institutionalized these civilly committed patients, or placed them at serious risk of institutionalization, in Plaintiffs’ acute care hospitals, when they need community-based treatment, in violation of the integration mandate.

127. OHA violates Section 504, and its implementing regulations, including as follows:

EIGHTH CLAIM

Violation of Section 1557 of the Patient Protection and Affordable Care Act

133. OHA receives Federal financial assistance for its health programs, including programs and activities related to civil commitment of individuals with mental disabilities and treatment during their period of commitment. As such, OHA is a covered entity subject to the requirements of 45 C.F.R. Part 92 and Section 1557 of the Affordable Care Act, 42 U.S.C. § 18116 et seq.

134. As a covered entity, OHA is prohibited from discriminating against individuals with mental disabilities, both directly and through coordinated care organizations that it regulates and funds for its Medicaid programs.

135. OHA discriminates against individuals with mental disabilities who are civilly committed by failing to provide adequate treatment resources, failing to ensure treatment is received in the least restrictive and most integrated setting, creating unreasonable risks of institutionalization and segregation, failing to legally design and implement benefits, failing to ensure adequate provider networks, denying services, and failing to provide for reimbursement rates sufficient to avoid discrimination.

136. OHA's practices violate Section 1557 and its regulations, including 45 C.F.R. §§ 92.101, 92.205 and 92.207.

137. Pursuant to 42 U.S.C. § 18116(a), the Court should enter declaratory judgment that OHA's practices violate Section 1557 and an injunction against further violations.

139. Article I, Section 18, of the Oregon Constitution provides in part that “[p]rivate property shall not be taken for public use . . . without just compensation; nor except in the case of the state, without such compensation first assessed and tendered.”

~~. . . without just compensation; nor except in the case of the state, without such compensation first assessed and tendered.”~~

140. For years, OHA has engaged in conduct and a policy and practice that results in a taking of Plaintiffs’ and other community hospitals’ property for public use without just compensation. Once ~~a general judgment of commitment is entered and~~ individuals are ~~stabilized and~~ civilly committed to the custody of OHA for up to 180 days of treatment, they are supposed to be transferred to an appropriate long-term treatment facility. OHA is supposed to ensure they are transferred to the facility best able to treat them or a suitable facility ~~at the time of commitment~~. Instead, however, after individuals are civilly committed—and they are no longer represented by counsel to protect their rights—these individuals are left indefinitely in restrictive and confined settings in acute care hospitals, where they are forgotten by OHA.

141. Because civilly committed individuals who are committed to the custody of OHA for treatment are occupying community hospitals’ beds for weeks, months, and sometimes their entire 180-day commitment and recommitment period, OHA’s conduct deprives Plaintiffs and other community hospitals of their hospital beds. It results in beds being unnecessarily occupied by civilly committed individuals who have no medical reason to be in acute care settings, and prevents other acute psychiatric patients in the community from accessing much needed care, including patients who are backed up in emergency departments. Because of OHA’s actions, community hospitals are deprived of the services of its care providers, forced to incur costs associated with housing patients who should be elsewhere, and left with no choice but to devote significant resources to patients who have no medical reason to be there, including medication, food, housekeeping services, security, and one-to-one sitters 24 hours a day.

142. OHA ~~does and their contracted Coordinated Care Organizations do~~ not provide sufficient compensation to cover the costs and fair value of Plaintiffs' property used to care for civilly committed patients left at Plaintiffs' hospitals.

143. OHA will continue engaging in its conduct, policy, and practice unless the Court enjoins such conduct. As demonstrated by its inaction, despite repeated pleas to OHA for help over the years, it is clear that OHA intends to continue using community hospitals to house civilly committed individuals indefinitely, if not permanently. Declaratory and injunctive relief are appropriate because community hospitals lack an adequate remedy at law. Plaintiffs cannot feasibly seek adequate and just compensation through individual legal actions for each civilly committed patient left in Plaintiffs' care because the expenses of pursuing so many individual legal actions would exceed the compensation Plaintiffs seek to recover.

144. Plaintiffs seek a declaration that OHA's conduct, policy, and practice violates Plaintiffs' and other community hospitals' rights under Article 1, Section 18 of the Oregon Constitution. Plaintiffs also seek a permanent injunction enjoining OHA from continuing its conduct, policy, and practice.

145. Plaintiffs do not seek compensatory damages for OHA's unlawful takings. Plaintiffs seek only declaratory relief, injunctive relief, ~~nominal damages,~~ and recovery of their ~~attorneys fees~~<sup>attorneys' fees</sup> and costs in bringing this action.

148. OHA's conduct, policy, and practice violates its statutory duties under ORS 426.060 by deliberately failing to make any placement decision for civilly committed individuals. Instead of being placed in the facility "best able to treat" them or a "suitable facility" at the time of commitment, OHA is choosing to leave civilly committed individuals indefinitely in acute care hospitals, and deliberately failing to make any placement decision for them as contemplated by the statute.

149. OHA will continue engaging in its conduct, policy, and practice unless the Court enjoins such conduct. As demonstrated by its inaction, despite repeated pleas to OHA for help over the years, it is clear that OHA intends to continue using community hospitals to house civilly committed individuals indefinitely, if not permanently. Declaratory relief is appropriate because community hospitals lack an adequate remedy at law.

As demonstrated by its inaction, despite repeated pleas to OHA for help over the years, it is clear that OHA intends to continue using community hospitals to house civilly committed individuals indefinitely, if not permanently. Plaintiffs seek a declaration that OHA's conduct, policy, and practice violates its duties under ORS 426.060, and that OHA has a legal duty to provide civilly committed individuals meaningful treatment during their 180-day commitment and place civilly committed individuals in the facility best able to treat them or a suitable facility at the time of commitment.

SIXTH CLAIM*ELEVENTH CLAIM*Violation of Civilly Committed Individuals' Rights under ORS 426.150(1)

152. Plaintiffs reallege and incorporate by reference paragraphs 1 through 50151 above.

153. When an individual is civilly committed, “[OHA] or its designee shall take the person with mental illness into its custody, and ensure the safekeeping and proper care of the person until the person is delivered to an assigned treatment facility or to a representative of the assigned treatment facility.” ORS 426.150(1).

154. OHA’s conduct, policy, and practice violates its statutory duties under ORS 426.150(1)(1). Once individuals are civilly committed, OHA is failing to take custody of these individuals and ensure the safekeeping and proper care of these individuals until they are delivered to an assigned treatment facility or to a representative of the assigned treatment facility. Instead, OHA is leaving civilly committed individuals in acute care community hospitals where they are initially detained for emergency purposes on a notice of mental illness, and failing to place patients after they are civilly committed.

155. OHA will continue engaging in its conduct, policy, and practice unless the Court enjoins such conduct. As demonstrated by its inaction, despite repeated pleas to OHA for help over the years, it is clear that OHA intends to continue using community hospitals to house civilly committed individuals indefinitely, if not permanently. ### SEVENTH CLAIM

TWELFTH CLAIM

Violation of Civilly Committed Individuals' Rights under ORS 659A.142(5)(a) and (6)(a)

158. Plaintiffs reallege and incorporate by reference paragraphs 1 through 50157 above.

159. ORS 659A.142(5)(a)(a) provides that “[i]t is an unlawful practice for state government to exclude an individual from participation in or deny an individual the benefits of the services, programs or activities of state government or to make any distinction, discrimination or restriction because the individual has a disability.”

160. ORS 659A.142(6)(a)(a) provides that “[i]t is an unlawful practice for a provider or any person acting on behalf of a provider to discriminate by doing any of the following based on the patient's race, color, national origin, sex, sexual orientation, gender identity, age or disability: (A)-Deny medical treatment to the patient that is likely to benefit the patient based on an individualized assessment of the patient using objective medical evidence; or (B)-Limit or restrict in any manner the allocation of medical resources to the patient.”

161. OHA's conduct, policy, and practice violates its statutory duties under ORS 659A.142(5)(a)(a) because OHA is excluding civilly committed individuals from admission to OSH, and denying them an alternative appropriate long-term placement when they are civilly committed to the custody of OHA for 180 days of treatment.

162. OHA's conduct, policy, and practice violates its statutory duties under ORS 659A.142(6)(a)(a) because OHA is discriminating against civilly committed individuals by denying them appropriate long-term treatment once they are civilly committed to the custody of OHA, and limiting and restricting the allocation of resources to them.

163. OHA will continue engaging in its conduct, policy, and practice unless the Court enjoins such conduct. As demonstrated by its inaction, despite repeated pleas to OHA for help over the years, it is clear that OHA intends to continue using community hospitals to house civilly committed individuals indefinitely, if not permanently. Declaratory and injunctive relief are appropriate because community hospitals lack an adequate remedy at law.

164. Plaintiffs seek a declaration that OHA's conduct, policy, and practice violates Plaintiffs' rights under ORS 659A.142(5)(a)(a) and (6)(a)(a). Plaintiffs also seek a permanent injunction pursuant to ORS 659A.885(1) enjoining OHA from continuing its statutory violations and their attorneys' fees pursuant to ORS 659A.885(8)(d).

RELIEF REQUESTED

Plaintiffs respectfully request the following relief:

A. Declare that OHA's conduct, policy, and practice regarding civilly committed individuals violates the Fifth and Fourteenth Amendments to the United States Constitution because:

i. They force community hospitals to house and treat civilly committed individuals indefinitely, thus occupying and taking their property, despite the fact that community hospitals are not equipped, staffed, or designed to provide long-term care and treatment appropriate for civilly committed individuals;

ii. There is no state law procedure for community hospitals to contest being forced to house civilly committed individuals when they no longer require that level of treatment;

iii. They result in a taking of community hospitals' private property for public use without just compensation;

iv. They result in a violation of civilly committed individuals' right to receive appropriate treatment and, further, deny liberty interests arising from state law; and

v. There is no state law procedure for community hospitals to ensure that civilly committed individuals are placed by OHA in the facility best able to treat them or even a suitable facility.

B. Declare that OHA's conduct, policy, and practice regarding civilly committed individuals violates Title II of the Americans with Disabilities Act and Section 504 of the Rehabilitation Act, and the implementing regulations, because:

i. They administer the state's mental health system in a way that subjects civilly committed patients to unnecessary institutionalization in community hospitals instead of providing them with community-based treatment resources;

ii. They directly or through contractual or other arrangements utilize criteria or methods of administration in the state's mental health system that subject civilly committed patients to discrimination on the basis of their disabilities;

iii. They fail to administer services, programs, and activities in the most integrated setting appropriate to the needs of civilly committed patients; and

iv. They fail to make reasonable modifications to allow civilly committed patients to participate in OHA's services, programs, and activities in an integrated community setting.

C. Declare that OHA's conduct, policy, and practice regarding civilly committed individuals violates Section 1557 of the Patient Protection and Affordable Care Act, and its implementing regulations, because OHA discriminates against individuals with mental disabilities who are civilly committed by failing to provide adequate treatment resources, failing to ensure treatment is received in the least restrictive and most integrated setting, creating unreasonable risks of institutionalization and segregation, failing to legally design and implement benefits, failing to ensure adequate provider networks, denying services, and failing to provide for reimbursement rates sufficient to avoid discrimination.

B.D. Declare that OHA's conduct, policy, and practice regarding civilly committed individuals violates Article I, Section 18, of the Oregon Constitution because they result in a taking of Plaintiffs' and other community hospitals' private property for public use without just compensation.

C.E. Declare that OHA's conduct, policy, and practice regarding civilly committed individuals violates its duties under ORS 426.060, and that OHA has a legal duty to provide civilly committed individuals meaningful treatment during their 180-day commitment and place them in the facility best able to treat them or a suitable facility ~~at the time of commitment~~.

D.F. Declare that OHA's conduct, policy, and practice regarding civilly committed individuals violates its duties under ORS 426.150, and that OHA has a legal duty to take civilly committed individuals into its custody, and ensure the safekeeping and proper care of them by delivering them to an assigned treatment facility best able to treat them or a suitable facility.

E.G. Declare that OHA's conduct, policy, and practice regarding civilly committed individuals violates ORS 659A.142(5)(a) and (6)(a).

H. Permanently enjoin OHA from continuing to violate civilly committed patients' due process rights to liberty and hospitals' due process rights to property, and from continuing to take hospitals' property without just compensation, and further requiring OHA to fulfill its obligations to provide civilly committed patients the care and treatment they are entitled to by law.

F.I. Permanently enjoin OHA from continuing to violate civilly committed individuals' rights under Title II of the Americans with Disabilities Act, Section 504 of the Rehabilitation Act, and Section 1557 of the Patient Protection and Affordable Care Act.
